Two Dublin Professors Resign

Institute for Advanced Studies

(SPECIAL "IRISH TIMES" NEWS.)

TWO distinguished Irish scholars have severed their connection with the Dublin Institute for Advanced Studies, set up by the Government under a bill passed thirteen months ago.

PROFESSOR BINCHY.

Professor Daniel Anthony Binchy, M.A., Ph.D., barrister-at-law, has resigned from the first Council of the Institute, and Professor Osborn Bergin, Ph.D., has relinquished his position as a Senior Professor in the School of Celtic Studies.

Both men last night declined to disclose to the "Irish Times" the reasons for their resignations, but from other sources it is suggested that they have been of opinion that the Institute was not free enough from Government control.

PROFESSOR BERGIN.

Professor Bergin's only comment, when approached last night, was that he had tendered his resignation, and that he was only aware of the two resignations. Professor Binchy also confirmed that he had handed in his resignation, but would add nothing.

The action taken by the professors has not yet come before the Council of the Institute itself, and, therefore, there is no official explanation from the Council.

The Advanced Studies Institute was set up at the instance of An Taoiseach. Its functions, according to the Act, are "to provide facilities for the furtherance of advanced study and the conduct of research in specialised branches of knowledge, and for the publication of the results of such study and research." These facilities are being provided through constituent schools for the different branches of knowledge, including a School for Celtic Studies and a School for Theoretical Physics.

The other members of the Council are:—The Rev. Patrick Browne, M.A., D.Sc. (Chairman); Richard Irvine Best, D.Litt.; Felix E. W. Hackett, M.A., M.Sc., Ph.D., and Edwin Schrödinger, M.A., D.Sc. The other senior professors in the School of Celtic Studies are Professors O. Best and T. O'Rahilly.

Professor Binchy has been Professor of Roman Law, Jurisprudence and Legal History, including ancient Irish law, at University College, Dublin, since 1934. He is an authority of the first rank in the ancient Irish law texts.

Dr. Bergin is generally recognised as the greatest living authority in the Irish language, of which he has made a life study in all periods of its development from the ancient glosses to present day literature.

TANK DRIVE ON THE UKRAINE

FIERCE BATTLES ON RIVER BERESINA

AS Berlin claimed yesterday to be attacking on the whole Russian front, the Soviet communiqué declared that the spearhead of the German advance had been thrown back in its efforts to cross the river Beresina, in White Russia.

Fighting is raging in a great triangle formed by the towns of Borisov, Bobruisk, and Slutsk, east of Minsk, and the German tanks and motorised troops have been held up all along the line of the river.

The Russian communiqué says that, following a battle in the Luck sector, Red Army troops stemmed the advance of large German mechanised units towards Shepetovka, just over Russia's 1938 frontier—the main German effort in this region appears to be in this direction—and inflicted great losses on the Germans.

Violent fighting is also reported near the three towns of Kremenez, Zbaraz and Tarnopol, which are all in Eastern Poland, just south of the Pripet Marshes.

DVINA RIVER CROSSED

The communiqué by the Soviet Information Board early to-day states:—

"Violent fighting occurred on Thursday on the southern bank of the River Dvina, in the Dvinsk and Jakobstadt sectors. The enemy crossed the Dvina near Jakobstadt. In the direction of Minsk the enemy has suffered considerable losses.

"Stubborn fighting took place along the Beresina River, where Soviet tanks, infantry, artillery and Air Force inflicted heavy losses on the enemy. During the fighting German tanks avoided combat with Soviet heavy tanks.

"Wherever our fighter 'planes appeared they rapidly gained mastery in the air over the battlefield."

Throughout Wednesday night Russian troops stemmed the attempt of a mobile column to break through in a southerly direction to Tarnapol.

The struggle between the Red Air Force and the Luftwaffe continued, and, says Moscow, the day ended with 61 German 'planes destroyed for the loss of 28 Russian.

The German High Command communiqué claims that German and Rumanian troops have crossed the Pruth River from Northern Moldavia, and are advancing towards the Dniester. It alleges that "the power of resistance of the Soviet Army now seems to have been broken," and that retreating movements are in evidence along the whole front.

A Hungarian communiqué declares that on Wednesday "our troops beyond the Carpathians continued their advance, and our Air Force successfully bombed the retreating enemy."

According to military circles in London, developments in the Baltic sector indicate that the Germans have crossed the Dvina and are establishing bridge-heads, from which a powerful drive—clearly a threat to Leningrad, the Soviet's second city—is to be launched.

In the Minsk sector the Red Army is offering magnificent resistance and fighting with great bravery, striving to cut the lines of communication between the German Panzer divisions and their infantry support.

THREAT TO KIEV

Further south the thrust directed against Kiev, capital of the rich Ukraine, is making little headway against the stubborn defence of the Russians.

Bad weather conditions and snowstorms around Lwow are hampering German troops operating in South-East Poland, according to the German News Agency last night. The statement emphasises the obstinate resistance of the Soviet troops on this front.

GERMAN CLAIMS

Claims made by the German Agency include:—"Thirty Soviet tanks annihilated in fighting for Dubno, in Eastern Poland. Land forces advancing along the Baltic coast destroyed or captured 631 tanks, 168 heavy and light guns and 40 'planes up to July 1st. German soldiers also captured 19 anti-aircraft guns and 24 anti-tank guns and two armoured trains.

The Agency claims that German bombers brought down 52 Soviet 'planes in the Bialystok area on Wednesday, while 97 were destroyed on the ground. An armoured train and five troop trains were destroyed in attacks on supply columns. The roads are strewn with wreckage of vehicles and corpses, it was added.

An unnamed Soviet torpedo boat has destroyed a submarine, probably German, in the Baltic Sea, says Krasny Flot, organ of the Soviet Navy.

HELSINKI RAIDED

A Helsinki report says that Soviet 'planes attacked Helsinki yesterday and bombed the eastern outskirts of Malmi. Smoke was seen rising from that area where the aerodrome is situated, but reports said this was caused through forest fires.

A Soviet bomber was brought down in a raid on Joensuu yesterday, says an official Finnish communiqué, which alleges that a surgeon and a nurse at the local hospital were killed.

The statements made by Prince Konoye, Japanese Premier, and Mr. Matsuoka, Foreign Minister, indicating the continuation of Japan's policy of waiting were published prominently—without comment—in the Soviet Press yesterday, says the Press Association.

GERMAN REPLY

The German radio last night commenting on Stalin's appeal to Russians to burn all grain crops should the Germans advance into the Ukraine, said:—"The population of the area concerned will only harm themselves, for from us they will not get even one grain."

A second Italian motorised division from Turin, consisting of tanks, armoured cars, pontoons and artillery is leaving for Russia immediately, says a "Times" message quoted by Press Association.

An Associated Press Moscow report says that Russians rose in arms by the thousand yesterday in response to Stalin's appeal to form a people's fighting force to back the Red Army against the German invasion. Recruiting began among the workers of Moscow and Leningrad, and other towns were expected to follow suit shortly. People's armies abound in Russian history, having risen against the Polish invasion in the Middle Ages, Napoleon's invasion and during the Bolshevist uprising.

Moscow radio announced that mass meetings of workers were being held in factories to secure action following Stalin's appeal. Copies of the speech were pasted on walls in the capital, while loud-speakers relayed it to crowds in the sun-lit streets and squares.

Ankara Radio last night quoted a Stockholm report that the Swedish National Defence Association had decided not to form a Swedish Voluntary Corps against the Soviet. Swedes will, however, be able to join the Finnish Army as volunteers.

GENERAL WAVELL'S MISSION

Increasing emphasis is being laid in some Turkish circles in Ankara, says the Press Association, on the fact that General Sir Archibald Wavell is the best-informed British General on Russian affairs. They suggest that his appointment may have been inspired with a view to building up an eastern line of defence to oppose a possible German break-through in the Caucasus. The strong resistance offered by the Russians on the River Pruth, together with the destruction effected at Constanza and other Rumanian ports, appears to have led the Germans to abandon the idea of landing troops in the Crimea. Their new plan, it is believed, envisages a break-through beyond Kiev, which would be supported later by parachute troops.

"The position of Spain in respect of the war between Russia and Germany cannot be other than one of the most resolute moral belligerence on the side of our friends against the most hated of all Spain's enemies," declared the Spanish Foreign Minister, Senor Serrano Suner in an interview with the Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung.

Signor Suner said that victory over Russia was indispensable for the reorganisation and future of Europe, and after it "let the United States, who have no illusions of winning a military victory, come with their economic war against Europe."

When the wall of Bolshevist economy has been destroyed, and production rationalised, he said, "the European economic system can face, as long as is necessary, the circle of hunger the so-called great democracies dream about."

MEAT MAY BE CHEAPER

DUBLIN MARKETS TO OPEN NEXT FRIDAY

DUBLIN people may be able to obtain their meat supplies at a slightly lower price as a result of the re-opening of the Dublin Cattle Markets next Friday.

The markets have been closed for over five months—the longest period in their history—owing to the prevalence of foot-and-mouth disease. Until conditions return to normal two markets will be held each week, and from these it is anticipated that 2,400 cattle and 2,000 lambs will be available for export, while the needs of the Dublin market will also be supplied. Any cattle or sheep which will remain unsold in these markets will be slaughtered in the Dublin Abattoir and the carcases exported.

One Dublin butcher told the Irish Times that the re-opening of the market was most welcome. While the presence of foreign competitors in the market might mean that prices would be much the same as usual, there was a possibility that there would be a slight decrease in meat prices for Dublin people. One effect of the opening of the markets will be that the Emergency Meat Committee, which was set up to eliminate transactions in the country which might result in a spread of the disease, will be wound up. The Committee met Dr. Ryan, the Minister for Agriculture, at Government Buildings yesterday, and the Minister thanked them for their services.

TUESDAYS AND FRIDAYS

Until further notice, says a statement by the Department of Agriculture, markets will be held on Tuesdays and Fridays, instead of Thursdays as heretofore. The movement of stock to the market will be confined to animals located in the area north of the northern branch of the Grand Canal running from the Dublin County Borough boundary at Bluebell, Inchicore, north of Clondalkin through Sallins, Robertstown, Allenwood, south of Edenderry, through Daingean, Tullamore, Rahan, south of Ferbane, and through Shannon Harbour to the mouth of the Shannon, so as to include all County Clare, but omitting Limerick City and the Dublin and Dun Laoghaire Boroughs. From this area the movement of stock will be permitted only under licence issued through the Dublin livestock salesmasters. Licences will be granted only to actual producers in the area, who will be required to make a declaration that the animals are healthy and have been with them for at least eight weeks before the date of the market at which they are to be sold. Great importance will be attached to the declaration to be made by producers on the back of the licences, and any misrepresentation will be dealt with severely. Licences will not be granted to dealers or in respect of cattle purchased at fairs. The licence will cover the movement of stock across Dublin City or on foot within a radius of fifteen miles of the market. A separate licence, which will be obtained from the Department's office in the market, will be needed for the movement of animals to the North Wall for export or to the Dublin Corporation Abattoir for slaughter.

NO FOOT-AND-MOUTH DISEASE CASES

For the second successive day no cases of foot-and-mouth disease were reported yesterday.

GERMANY CLAIMS 12,433,000 TONS.

The German radio claimed last night that 12,433,000 tons of British and British-controlled shipping have been sunk since the beginning of the war.

Sinkings during the last three months totalled 2,500,000 tons, it was alleged. —(Press Association.)

"GERMAN AGENTS IN EIRE"

BRITISH MINISTER'S REPLY TO M.P.

In the British House of Commons yesterday, Sir William Davison (Conservative), Kensington, asked "if the Government were aware of the ease with which any of the large numbers of German agents in Eire could cross the frontier between Eire and Northern Ireland in order to obtain full particulars of British forces now stationed in Ulster, as well as details of anti-invasion manœuvres, and that information so gained was being despatched to Germany in sealed diplomatic bags from the German Legation in Dublin."

"What steps will be taken," he asked, "to deal with this menace to Britain's safety?"

Mr. Morrison (Home Secretary), replying for the Prime Minister, said that Sir William was under a misapprehension in suggesting that no precautions had been taken to hinder German agents from crossing and re-crossing the border.

Much attention had been given to the matter, and Sir William might rest assured that practical steps had been taken, and would continue to be taken, to deal with this, as well as other possible channels for leakage of information.

COAL RESTRICTION IN BRITAIN

The British Government has decided to limit the quantity of coal supplied to domestic consumers to one ton per month until further notice.

As announced on Monday, for the months of July and August householders in Eire are restricted to a total of five cwt.

MISSING TANKER MAKES PORT

CREW RETURNS AFTER 72 HOURS

PRESS ASSOCIATION
NEW YORK Thursday.

For seventy-two hours the crew of the torpedoed British tanker, Ensis (6,207 tons), drifted in a lifeboat, calling for help with a portable radio. When the radio went silent listeners assumed that the lifeboat and crew had perished. The Ensis herself has, however, now made port in Eastern Canada. Volunteers had boarded her and closed the tanks and bulkheads, and then the crew sailed the Ensis over 1,000 miles to safety.

PALMYRA FALLS TO ALLIES

ITALIANS SURRENDER AT DEBRA TABOR

PALMYRA, fortified town on the Iraq-Tripoli oil-pipe line in Central Syria, surrendered yesterday to Allied forces, which had steadily encircled the town and cut off all means of retreat.

According to a French communiqué, the surrender—officially announced in Jerusalem last night—followed a "powerful attack" by British tanks, which then entered the town.

The Italian commander at Debra Tabor surrendered with 4,200 troops.

4,200 PRISONERS

PRESS ASSOCIATION.
JERUSALEM, Thursday.

Palmyra, oil fortress town on the edge of the Syrian desert, 150 miles east of Damascus, surrendered at 3.30 this afternoon, it is officially announced.

Palmyra has been gradually encircled by Allied forces in order to cut off any attempt by the French troops in the fortress to retreat towards Homs.

Once a famous city of the Middle East—known in the Book of Chronicles as Tadmor—its importance to-day is in its position on the Iraq-Tripoli oil pipe-line and its air-field.

IN ABYSSINIA

The following official communiqué was issued from British General Headquarters, Cairo, yesterday:—

"Abyssinia—The Italian commander of the troops at Debra Tabor has agreed to surrender on the same terms as those imposed at Amba Alagi. Prisoners number approximately 3,000 Italians and 1,200 African troops."

Debra Tabor lies among mountain ranges about 40 miles east of Lake Tana and 70 miles south-east of Gondar. The surrender still leaves five centres of resistance in Abyssinia, states the Press Association.

MANY AIR RAIDS

PRESS ASSOCIATION.
LONDON, Thursday.

To-day's communiqué from H.Q., R.A.F., Middle East, states:—

"Syria and Palestine—Aircraft of the Royal Air Force and the Royal Australian Air Force continued their attacks on military objectives in Syria. French shipping in the harbour at Beirut was again bombed last night, explosions being caused on the central quays. Bombing attacks were also made at Souseida, where direct hits were obtained on the fort and military barracks. The Satellite aerodrome at Nasrullah was both bombed and machine-gunned, and bombs were dropped on the coast road near Homs, causing numerous craters and destroying French transport vehicles. Aircraft of the Royal Australian Air Force machine-gunned and severely damaged a number of flying-boats in harbour at Tripoli, and also attacked motor transport vehicles near Beirut. An enemy aircraft which approached Haifa last night was shot down.

"Libya—Bomber aircraft of the Royal Air Force attacked several targets in Cyrenaica and Tripolitania during the night of 1-2 July.

TRIPOLI ATTACKED

"At Tripoli a number of direct hits were made on merchant vessels, which appeared to catch fire, and also on the moles, where a number of fires broke out.

"At Benghazi fires were started on the Cathedral Mole, while at Gazala four fires, which were started by a successful attack, coalesced into a large blaze, which was visible 70 miles away and was accompanied by violent explosions. An aircraft was shot down at Tobruk. From these operations one of our aircraft is missing."

FRENCH CLAIMS

PRESS ASSOCIATION.
LONDON, Thursday.

A French communiqué states:—

"Palmyra fell after its heroic defenders had for thirteen days put up an admirable resistance against enemy forces, which had a crushing superiority both in numbers and material.

"South-east of Deir-es-Zor on the right bank of the Euphrates our troops are opposing the advance of the motorised column from Abu Kemal. Farther north a new motorised column from Iraq this morning crossed the Syrian frontier at Tel Kotchek, and is trying to advance along the Mosul railway.

"On the coast, the British Fleet bombarded our positions at Damour.

"Our Air Force continued to bomb enemy troops in the Palmyra and Abu Kemal sectors. On July 2 our fighters shot down a Hurricane and a Blenheim, and seriously damaged another. The town of Beirut was bombed by the R.A.F. with increased violence during the night of July 2-3. Several districts where there are no military objectives were seriously damaged by incendiary and high-explosive bombs. There were casualties among the civilian population."

SERUM INSTITUTE POSSIBILITIES

ESTABLISHMENT MAY COME LATER

There is no likelihood of immediate steps being taken to set up a Serum Institute in this country.

Yesterday the Irish Times reported that unless such an institute was established immediately there was a prospect of supplies of sera in Ireland being exhausted within twelve months.

Interest in the published forecast of medical authorities extended to official circles, where the view is held that the cost of such an establishment at present would be prohibitive; and that while it is felt that an institute would be a most desirable asset, and would, it is hoped, eventually become an accomplished fact, there is virtually no hope of establishing it at present.

There is, it is agreed, a general shortage of medicines, drugs, sera, etc., and, in some instances, it is more keenly felt than in others, but in the sense that there are large stores (as distinct from stocks) of medicines in the country, which are available to the authorities should the position deteriorate, the shortage is not so severe as it might seem. Up to the present all demands have been met adequately, admittedly not without some of the difficulty and delay attendant on war conditions.

The head of one of the largest importers of sera in Ireland told an Irish Times representative that they not only had taken in very large reserve stocks themselves, but had supplied the hospitals with big reserves and had taken precautions to ensure that the material would not be allowed to run out of date.

PREMIER RECEIVES LABOUR LEADERS

The Taoiseach, who was accompanied by the Minister for Industry and Commerce and the Parliamentary Secretary to the Minister for Finance, yesterday received, at Government Buildings, a deputation representative of the Parliamentary Labour Party, the National Executive of the Trades Union Congress and the administrative council of the Labour Party.

It is understood that a general discussion took place on various problems embraced in a resolution adopted by the Labour bodies in March last. These referred to questions of unemployment, price control, fuel supplies, the better utilisation of land, the development of coal deposits, etc.

RATIFICATION OF TURCO-GERMAN PACT

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
BERLIN, Thursday.

M. Acikalim, Assistant Secretary-General of the Turkish Ministry of Foreign Affairs, arrived in Berlin to-day to represent Turkey at the ratification of the recently-signed German-Turkish Pact.

BIG SWEEPS OVER FRANCE

ATTACKS ON GERMAN TOWNS

BRITISH official reports claim that eleven German fighters were shot down, as against a British loss of six, in yesterday's sweeps over Northern France.

Bremen, Cologne and Duisburg were the objects of Wednesday night's attacks on German industrial centres.

A supply ship was hit by an aerial torpedo in the Channel, near to the French coast.

An Air Ministry report yesterday stated:—

"Fighter Command pilots again carried out an offensive sweep over occupied France to-day. Messerschmitt 109s were encountered, and, in the dog fight which followed, five were shot down and others damaged.

"The dog fight involved formations of eight and twelve Messerschmitt 109s. The Sergeant Pilot, who, on Wednesday got a "double," to-day tackled eight Messerschmitt's single-handed and damaged one. Another pilot shot off the port wing of a Messerschmitt with one burst, and another left his victim a mass of burning wreckage on the ground.

"Three of our fighters are missing from this operation."

A later communiqué stated:—

"Two offensive sweeps over Northern France have been carried out by squadrons of Royal Air Force fighters to-day.

"Eleven enemy fighters were shot down, and six of our fighters are missing.

"Bombers, which also took part in the operations, attacked railway targets in the Hazebrouck-St. Omer area. One bomber is missing."

GERMAN ACCOUNT

BERLIN, Thursday.

The Germans admit the loss of two 'planes during two sweeps by the Royal Air Force over the French coast to-day, but claim that eight Spitfires were brought down by German fighters and three by anti-aircraft fire.

ONLY ONE RAIDER OVER BRITAIN

The British Air Ministry last night announced:—

"Only one enemy aircraft has been over land to-day. This crashed off the Cornish coast this afternoon."

NIGHT ATTACKS ON GERMANY

LARGE FIRES STARTED

The British offensive against Germany's ports, communications and heavy industries was continued on Wednesday night by aircraft of the Bomber Command.

An Air Ministry communiqué stated:—

"The main effort was directed against Bremen, Cologne and Duisburg, and in the industrial quarters of all three cities large fires broke out. The attack on Bremen was particularly heavy.

"The docks at Cherbourg and oil storage tanks at Rotterdam were also attacked.

"Considerable resistance from enemy fighters and anti-aircraft defences was encountered and surmounted. An enemy fighter was shot down in flames over Holland by one of our heavy bombers.

"An enemy supply ship was attacked in the Channel, near the French coast, by Coastal Command aircraft during the night and hit by a torpedo.

SHIP TORPEDOED

"The supply ship was heavily laden, and of between 5,000 and 6,000 tons," states the Air Ministry News Service. Blenheim aircraft made the

DROWNED AT GLENDALOUGH

TWO NORTHERN HOLIDAY MAKERS

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.
WICKLOW, Thursday.

Harry McCluskey and Alice McKey, 65 Andersontown Crescent, Belfast, both aged about twenty years, were drowned at Glendalough yesterday.

They were on a holiday cycling tour and had reached the Laragh Hostel on Tuesday. On Wednesday evening they failed to return to the hostel from a walk, and the Warden communicated with the Civic Guards. A search was made, and late at night some clothing was found on the shore of the Upper Lake, Glendalough. Dragging was begun by the Guards, assisted by civilians, and after several hours the bodies were found, near one another.

No one witnessed the accident, but from the fact that the young woman was in bathing costume and had been seen in the lake about 3 o'clock, and that the young man was clothed except for his shoes and jacket, it is assumed that he jumped into the water to rescue the woman when she was in difficulties. His watch was stopped at 3 o'clock.

At the inquest, Mrs. H. Edge, wife of the warden of Glendalough Youth Hostel, said that the two people arrived at the hostel on Tuesday evening. They had Northern Ireland Youth Hostel Association cards. Having stayed that night they went for a walk at 11.30 on Wednesday morning. They did not return, and that night Mr. Edge informed the Guards.

Edward Bolger identified the bodies as those of people he had seen at the lake during the day. The girl had been swimming and the man paddling.

The Coroner, Dr. J. P. Hamilton, returned a verdict that death was due to drowning.

MIDDLE EAST APPOINTMENT

STATUS OF CAPTAIN LYTTELTON

The British Prime Minister, says the Press Association, is to be asked by Mr. Hore-Belisha to define precisely the status and duties of Captain Oliver Lyttelton, Minister of State, who has gone on a special mission to the Middle East and is now in Cairo.

Mr. Hore-Belisha wants to know what degree of authority Captain Lyttelton will have, for example, over the Commander-in-Chief or the British Ambassador to Egypt (Sir Miles Lampson); and whether the responsibility of other Government departments through whom instructions are normally given to their representatives is in any way infringed by Captain Lyttelton's appointment.

The question, tabled last night, is a sequel to exchanges in the House on Wednesday between Mr. Churchill and Mr. Hore-Belisha.

SUGAR

An official of the Irish Sugar Company told an Irish Times reporter yesterday that there had been no cut in the quantity of sugar made available to the trade.

He was discussing with an Irish Times reporter further complaints that many people had found difficulty in obtaining their usual supplies of the commodity.

Mr. Dermot G. Findlater said that his firm had not placed any restrictions on the sale of sugar, although they had tried to keep the amounts down to those normally distributed to customers.

It was learned on the other hand, that some retailers had sold unlimited quantities of sugar in the weeks before the introduction of the Budget, and were now obliged to restrict purchases of customers because of the paucity of their stocks.

U.S. ARMY PLANS AN ANTI-TANK DIVISION

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
WASHINGTON, Thursday.

General Marshall, Chief of Staff of the United States Army, has urgently recommended that the selective service trainees, the reserve of officers and National Guardsmen should be kept in service longer than the year contemplated by law. He says:—"Events of the past few days provide even more forcible indications of the suddenness with which an armed conflict can spread to an area hitherto considered free from attack."

The report says that the Army, now increased eight times, consists of 1,400,000 men, and the Air Force includes 54 combat groups.

The Army is forming twenty-two fast striking anti-tank battalions from existing infantry and field artillery units, announced Mr. Stimson, Secretary of War, to-day. They will be equipped with new self-propelling artillery pieces, including a revised 75mm. gun. Mr. Stimson said that he believed this new type of anti-tank force would be the first to be used by any army in the world.

U.S. HOPES FOR PEACE IN PACIFIC

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
WASHINGTON, Thursday.

Mr. Sumner Welles, Under Secretary of State, stated to-day that the U.S. Government naturally hoped that the attitude taken by the Japanese Government in the war would be of such a character as to make for the maintenance of peace in the Pacific. The statement followed a question whether the United States had official information concerning the policy adopted by Japan.

Mr. Stimson, U.S. Secretary of War, refused to comment on reports that the Panama Canal might be closed to Japanese ships.

U-BOAT STOPS A BRAZILIAN SHIP

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.
LISBON, Thursday.

A meeting with a big German U-boat in the Atlantic was reported by the Brazilian liner, Signeira Campos, 6,456 tons, when she docked here to-day. The U-boat fired two shots across the liner's bows to make her heave-to and her officers were summoned on board the submarine, where a German officer examined their papers and then allowed them to return.

U.S. WILL OCCUPY ICELAND?

PRESS ASSOCIATION.
WASHINGTON, Thursday.

The United States is to send forces of the U.S. Army and Navy to occupy Iceland, Senator Wheeler stated to-day. "I am reliably informed," he said, "that we are about to take over Iceland and send troops, ships and 'planes there. My information is that the men will embark on July 23 or 24."

Senator Wheeler added that he understood that the Americans would relieve the British troops now in Iceland. At a Press conference he stated that he was advised the State Department wanted to hold Iceland so that American merchantmen could carry goods there and then transfer them to British vessels. "Then American ships and 'planes will patrol the routes used by British ships on the remainder of the journey across the Atlantic," he said.

ESTHONIAN SHIPS IN EIRE

SOVIET APPEAL DISMISSED

The Supreme Court unanimously dismissed, with costs, the appeals of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics from the judgment of Mr. Justice Hanna, dismissing their motions to have set aside proceedings in actions regarding the ownership of one Latvian and three Esthonian ships, now in Irish ports, and the control and operation of another Latvian ship.

The U.S.S.R. had claimed ownership of the vessels—the Ramava and the Everoja, of Riga; the Otto, of Parnu, and the Piret and the Mall, of Tallin—as the result of an order nationalising all former Latvian and Esthonian vessels, subsequent to the incorporation of Latvia and Esthonia in U.S.S.R.; and had submitted that such a claim having been made by them as a sovereign independent State, the Courts of Eire could not intervene except with their consent.

Mr. Justice Hanna, in the course of his judgment, had mentioned that the Minister for External Affairs here had intimated, in reply to his question, that the Government of Eire did not officially recognise the Government of the U.S.S.R. as a sovereign Government of the Republics of Latvia and Esthonia, and during the arguments in the Supreme Court it had been suggested by counsel for the U.S.S.R. that the Court should ask the Minister whether or not the Government of Eire recognised the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics as a sovereign independent State either de facto or de jure in Latvia and in Esthonia.

MINISTER'S REPLY TO QUERIES

The Chief Justice intimated that the Court had addressed those questions to the Minister, and that a reply had been received stating that the Government of Eire did not recognise the Government of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics as a sovereign independent State, either de facto or de jure, in Latvia and in Esthonia; and in his judgment he said that, in view of these answers, the claim of the U.S.S.R. to ownership of the vessels could not be recognised by the courts here, and that, the U.S.S.R. was not in any way affected by these proceedings. Accordingly the order of the High Court would be affirmed and the appeals would be dismissed.

Mr. Justice Murnaghan, Mr. Justice Geoghegan and Mr. Justice O'Byrne agreed; Mr. Justice Meredith, who also agreed, gave a judgment in which he dealt specifically with each of the grounds of appeal.

In regard to appeals of the U.S.S.R. from orders of Mr. Justice Hanna giving liberty to the plaintiffs in three summonses to appoint a shipping agent to manage and negotiate in regard to the chartering of the Otto, the Piret, the Mall and the Ramava, Mr. Brereton Barry, K.C., who, with Mr. W. L. Sainsbury (instructed by Messrs. Hoey and Denning), appeared for the plaintiffs, said that they had gone very far in their negotiations for the chartering of these ships for the purpose of food and other necessaries to this country, and he had understood that in the event of the Court deciding the first appeals in the way in which they had decided them, counsel for the U.S.S.R. scarcely would proceed with these latter appeals.

Mr. Overend, K.C., who, with Mr. Joseph A. McCarthy, K.C., and Miss Deverell (instructed by Messrs. Hamilton, Craig and Mitchell), appeared for the U.S.S.R., said that he would like to get instructions from London and that that could be done by telephone.

The Chief Justice said that the Court would put these latter appeals in the list for to-day.

Mr. Frank FitzGibbon, K.C., and Mr. E. S. Robinson (instructed by Messrs. Hayes and Son) appeared for the plaintiffs in an action about the control and operation of the Everoja.

CIRCUIT (CRIMINAL) COURT

MANAGER PUT BACK FOR SENTENCE

(BEFORE JUDGE DAVITT AND A JURY.)

After a two-days' trial, Samuel Harris, general manager of Messrs. Harris, Ltd., wholesale clothing manufacturers, Capel street, Dublin, was found guilty on nine counts charging him with having solicited employés of the firm to commit perjury by stating that sums of money had been paid to them on certain dates in 1939. By direction of the Judge, the jury found him not guilty on a tenth count.

The prisoner was put back for sentence.

Mr. J. A. McCarthy, K.C., and Mr. W. Moloney (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor) prosecuted, and Mr. F. Sherry (instructed by Mr. Herman Good) was for the defendant.

Harris, examined by Mr. Sherry, said that he employed about 80 workers. Wages varied every six months in certain classes of work, and it was because of negligence on his part, due to his preoccupation concerning the changing of his business premises, that his workers were under-paid. He had mentioned to the auditor that arrears of wages amounted to about £150. In August, 1939, he went to England to get supplies, and, buying more than he intended, found his account overdrawn when he returned. When he paid his employés the arrears he directed their attention to the fact that they were not being paid on the date mentioned on the receipt. He said to them: "I am expecting somebody to call here, and I want you to do me a favour. If you are asked by this person—and I doubt that you will be asked, because it will not be necessary—you will say you got the money a few weeks ago." They agreed, and he did not press the case further. He could not possibly have told them that they were to make the statement in court, because his solicitor at the time had told him that they would not have to go to court. He merely intended to deceive the Trade Board official who came along—that the official would get the receipts and produce them in court. When he realised in the District Court that some of his employés might be called on to give evidence he told them there was to be no perjury.

When asked, in cross-examination by Mr. McCarthy, if he thought it good business to ask his employés to tell lies in his interest, the defendant replied: "It all depends on what you want the lies told for—the purpose or seriousness of it."

Judge Davitt—You intended to deceive the Inspector?—Yes.

And by doing so you hoped to have the penalty mitigated?—I suppose I did.

And that if the true story were told to the District Justice the penalty would not be mitigated?—I think that is so.

WIFE'S PETITION REFUSED

BEFORE THE PRESIDENT OF THE HIGH COURT.

The petition of Mrs. Elizabeth O'Flanagan, Kenilworth square, Dublin, for a divorce from her husband, Henry J. O'Flanagan, 107 Clonliffe road, Dublin, on the ground of alleged cruelty, which was denied, was refused.

The President, who made no order in regard to costs, expressed the hope that some solution of the differences between the parties would be reached.

The parties were married in September, 1913, and there are two children of the marriage.

Mr. P. McGilligan (instructed by Messrs. Peter J. Flynn and Co.) appeared for Mrs. O'Flanagan, and Mr. O'Flanagan appeared in person.

DUBLIN DISTRICT COURT

CHILDREN LOCKED IN A ROOM

(BEFORE MR. HANNON.)

George O'Farrell (24), unemployed, St. Paul street, Dublin, was sent to prison for two months on a charge of neglecting his three children.

Mr. E. H. Burne, solicitor, who prosecuted for the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, said that the case was as bad a one as he had heard of for a long time.

Mrs. Clarke, Inspector for N.S.P.C.C., said that she found the children locked in a room. On the door was chalked "Out." The children were pale-faced and crying.

Dr. E. Clarke, Dublin Union, said that the children were suffering from neglect and had ricketts. Guard Flynn said there was no food in the house.

O'Farrell said that his wife had died some months ago. He was living on 21/6 relief money and was looking after his children as well as he could.

PREMISES OPEN AFTER MIDNIGHT

A fine of £4 was imposed on Robert Carroll, The Coombe, publican, for opening his premises on April 6th last at four minutes past midnight. It was alleged that a number of men had escaped over a wall at the back when the police made an entry. One of the men was caught on top of the wall.

Mr. T. O'Reilly, solicitor, defended. Mr. Humphries (Chief State Solicitor's office) prosecuted.

MILK VENDORS PROSECUTED

(BEFORE MR. M. J. LENNON.)

At Dun Laoghaire District Court yesterday, before Mr. M. J. Lennon, Mrs. Ellen O'Connor, Ballyandres, Ferns, County Wexford, was fined 1/- and £1 1s. costs for selling new milk deficient 14.11 per cent. of milk solids and 8.33 per cent. of milk fats. The sample of the milk was taken at Blackrock Railway Station, when in the course of transit.

Mrs. Charlotte Taggart, Patrick street, Dun Laoghaire, was fined £15 and £1 1s. costs for selling milk deficient 55 per cent. of the minimum amount of milk fat.

The Probation of Offenders' Act was applied to John Nolan, Tomlere, Oylegate, Enniscorthy, County Wexford, for supplying milk deficient 15 per cent. in milk fats.

An application for costs was refused.

The Probation Act was also applied to Michael Duffy, Lower George's street, Dun Laoghaire, but he was directed to pay £1 1s. 0d. costs for selling buttermilk deficient 32.26 per cent. of the minimum amount of milk solids other than milk fat.

Mr. Lennon said that the order was not a conviction.

The defendant stated that though the milk was supposed to be buttermilk, it really was sour milk.

Mr. Lennon asked was there anything to forbid him selling sour milk.

Mr. R. Kenny, solicitor, who prosecuted for the Dun Laoghaire Borough Corporation, said that he was not aware if there was but he maintained that it should be up to the standard of whole milk.

COMMISSIONER SUES STATE DEPARTMENTS

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE GAVAN DUFFY.)

Judgment was reserved in an action which was brought by Mr. Simon J. Moynihan, Commissioner for Waterford County Council, and Waterford Corporation against the Minister for Finance and the Minister for Justice, claiming a declaration that a person who had been confined in Waterford Mental Hospital from March 25, 1894, to October 15, 1933, had, from April 1, 1902, been a criminal lunatic; a declaration that all expenses incurred from April 1, 1902, to October 15, 1933, in relation to his detention were defrayable out of money payable by the Oireachtas, and payment of £1,307 odd.

In their statement of claim the plaintiffs stated that under the Treaty liability for payment of so much of the expenses as had been defrayable out of the money provided by the British Parliament for the maintenance of criminal lunatics had been transferred to the Government of the Irish Free State, and became payable out of money provided by the Oireachtas. The expenses in connection with this person who had been confined in Waterford Mental Hospital, had not been defrayed out of either money, but had been borne in their entirety by Waterford County Council and Waterford Corporation; and they claimed payment from the defendants.

The defendants denied liability, and relied on the Public Authorities Protection Act, 1893, and the statutes for the limitation of actions.

Mr. Costello, K.C., Mr. Lavery, K.C., and Mr. Matheson (instructed by Messrs. Dobbyn and McCoy) appeared for the plaintiffs; and Mr. Kevin Dixon, K.C., and Mr. Carroll O'Daly (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor) for the defendants.

DUBLIN ARCHITECTS' CLAIM

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE MARTIN MAGUIRE.)

Judgment was given for the full amount, £240, in a claim of Herbert Vivian Millar and Richard Gerald Millar, architects and civil engineers, carrying on business in Kildare street, Dublin, against Hospital Suppliers, Ltd., c/o R. O'Keeffe, Suffolk street, Dublin, for preparing sketch plans, etc., for the company for factories proposed to be erected at Lucan and Castleknock.

The defendants had filed a defence denying the plaintiffs' claims, but they did not appear on the hearing.

Mr. Claude Sainsbury (instructed by Messrs. Hone and Falkiner) appeared for the plaintiffs.

GRAFTON STREET FASHION SHOP

The association of Newell's fashion shop with Grafton street has been more firmly fixed by the recent acquisition by the company of the neighbouring premises to their main establishment. This has been followed by the closing of Newell's second Dublin shop, and the concentration of the firm's many specialised departments under one roof at 62 and 63 Grafton street. Customers have expressed their pleasure at the convenience provided by the new scheme, which has enabled the firm to re-plan its departments and give them more space (5,000 square feet was added to the floor space by the purchase of the new premises). The shop is one of the brightest in Dublin; for daylight floods in through large windows, and the stock is set out so as not to interrupt the light. Below stairs there is an attractive children's department, with toys to amuse the children and snatches of nursery rhymes around the walls.

Looking well ahead, Messrs. Newell's have large supplies of goods for all departments, but purchasers of woollen goods would be well advised to buy early. In addition to this planning for the future, the firm has an admirable policy of training classes for its staff, and this is responsible for the efficient and courteous service of which customers frequently express their appreciation.

Wesley's Cup for Third Successive Year

As was forecast by the opening day's play, Wesley College won the Senior Schools' Cup for the third successive year, defeating Blackrock College at Rathmines yesterday by an innings and 63 runs.

Following on 171 behind, Blackrock again shaped like making a fight of it, but, as in the first innings, they had nobody after the first three or four batsmen capable of making any runs at all, and they were all out by lunch time.

Robert Sheridan bowled O'Malley with only three runs on the board, but Gaynor and Burke then batted extremely well to add 39 for the second wicket, Gaynor doing nearly all the scoring. He also fell a victim to Robert Sheridan, but Egan then helped Burke to bring the score to 83. John Sheridan caused the main collapse at this moment, bowling Burke and having Egan l.b.w. seven runs later. That was the end of it, the last six wickets going for 25 runs. Sweetman's slow breaks leaving the lengthy tail quite helpless.

Apart from their moderate start on Wednesday morning, Wesley were on top from start to finish, and they are certainly a very strong schools' team. Their bowling was somewhat loose at times, but both Sheridans could unleash a really good ball occasionally, and their fielding was first-class, Doyle being notably good at mid-off. Score:—

WESLEY COLLEGE—First innings, 257.
BLACKROCK COLLEGE—First innings, 86.

G. H. Owens Fails in the Lumsden Cup

Gerald Owens (plus 2), a former winner of the John Lumsden Memorial Cup, was set the next to impossible task of conceding five strokes to J. McCullagh (4) in the first round last evening at Hermitage, and was beaten by two holes. McCullagh, playing a strong game, turned 2 up. From that on Owens fought back determinedly, but on the holes in he had to give three strokes, and his recovery went for nothing. J. D. Lyons (3), runner-up last year to Desmond Purcell, had a hard match with K. Coghlan (5), who brought him to the seventeenth.

The first round will be concluded this evening, starting at 4.45.

MOTOR TRADERS' COMPETITIONS

DELGANY AND NEWLANDS PLANS

The Committee of the Irish Motor and Allied Trades Golfing Society have set all doubts at rest regarding their annual meeting by arranging it for July 13 and 14 at Delgany.

This annual outing is something more than a mere golfing function; from the most distant points of the four provinces it brings to Dublin men intimately associated with the motor industry who have no other opportunity for meeting each other, and by that means a close connection is maintained between them that otherwise might not be possible.

This year, of course, is an exceptional one, and it would be a pleasant surprise for the captain and committee were the gathering to be as representative as usual; but the officers are working hard to insure the success of the tournament, and they are nothing if not expert and enthusiastic organisers, as the outings at Delgany have proved for so many years.

It was suggested when the decision was taken to carry on that it might be more convenient for all to go to a club nearer town, but it was rightly contended that the "annual" at any other club but Delgany would not be anything like the same enjoyable reunion, so that the uninterrupted connection with the beautiful Wicklow course is being maintained, and we may confidently look forward to large entries for the Dunlop Cup and the Percy Cup.

The Institute of the Motor Trade are also carrying on as usual at Newlands on Sunday, July 27th, when the Wakefield Cup will be played for over 18 holes, with a handicap limit of 18, followed by the semi-open fourball. To supplement the Institute's local funds a Raleigh three-speed bicycle will be raffled.

HIGH SCORING BY PROFESSIONALS

E. Bradshaw, who divided the first prize with his brother, Harry, at the recent G.U.I. Professional 36 holes Tournament at the Grange, won the Killiney Club's Competition yesterday with a nett 76. The scoring was exceptionally high, the next four scores being 78; but there was no excuse for it being so, as the course was playing easily, most of the trouble being the result of bad putting.

SPORTING ITEMS

The possibility of evening racing in England (first race at 5.0 or 5.30) is being discussed.

The number of flat race horses in training in England is to be reduced from the 1,600 at present to 1,200. There were 2,400 in training before the war.

The Stewards of the Jockey Club have given permission for "nursery" handicaps to be included in programmes after August 7.

H. Wragg has reported for military service and may not be riding at Pontefract to-morrow.

JOCKEY FINED

The Racing Calendar states:—J. Lawson reported that M. Beary had engaged himself to ride both for Lord Astor and for the Duchess of Norfolk in the Queen Mary Stakes at Newmarket, and asked the Stewards to adjudicate on the question. The Stewards found that Beary had first engaged himself to ride for the Duchess of Norfolk. They severely reprimanded him and fined him £25.

Bellewstown Races

Crafty Prince and Silver Fizz Score Again

The walk-over for Lord Adare's Lemon and Grey in the King's Plate caused a bit of a drag in the racing at Bellewstown on the second afternoon, but the other races were all interesting enough, and another big attendance well rewarded the executive for going on with the meeting under the difficulties that had to be faced.

Crafty Prince, who won a flat race on Wednesday, was saddled again for the Meath Hurdle, and had to carry 11st. 10lb. instead of 10st. 8lb., which would have been his weight but for his previous win. The extra weight made no difference, as he scored just as easily. He is owned by a young North of Ireland sportsman, Mr. A. D. H. Cooke, who trains his own horses at Kilsallaghan.

Another horse exploited for the second time was Mr. Joe Leech's Silver Fizz, whose hurdle race win on Wednesday entailed 7lb. extra in the Leggan Hall Steeplechase. There were many others preferred to him in the wagering, but, as on the previous day, his staying ability told when he tackled Colehill and Bray Glen in the closing stages of a well-run race.

There was a chapter of accidents in connection with the Wintergrass Steeplechase, won by Mr. P. J. O'Hagan's Golden Ivy. Drochat-Atha fell when about half the journey had been completed, and when Chattis Hill met with interference at the same stage his jockey was thrown. Crickstown had been making the running, but was done with about half a mile from home, when the race looked at the mercy of Kilcash Prince, but he ran out at the next fence, and Golden Ivy was left with an easy path to victory.

Lady Amoya, an odds-on favourite for the Shallon Plate, was one of the first beaten, and after Queen Boadicea had made most of the running she was headed close home by Guardroom and readily beaten. Seven runners were declared for the Corporation Plate, but Salescraft was found to be lame and her number was withdrawn. In her absence Hazel Fair, the property of Mr. J. A. Farrell, scored a bit cleverly from the well-bred Vides. Details:—

GILT-EDGED SOAR IN LONDON

A blaze up in Gilt-edged Securities provided the outstanding feature of the London Stock markets yesterday.

There was little activity during the opening stages, but expectations of an early announcement regarding new finance plans brought in considerable support after midday, and in the resultant rise Old War Loan soared to 105, the highest level since 1937. Local Loans proved another strong feature, gaining no less than ⅝ to 94⅝, whilst Old Consols put on ½ to 81⅝, and Conversion 3½ p.c. added 5/16 to 105⅞.

This sharp advance in British Funds encouraged sentiment in other directions, and markets generally left off on a firm note, though many of the improvements recorded were of little consequence. Exceptionally, Kaffirs had to face fresh profit-taking on Cape account, and Far West Rand issues finished weak, with West Wits notably lower.

British Rails showed a number of fresh losses.

The majority of movements in Industrials were favourable to holders. Woolworth displayed firmness at 51/-, following the dividend, whilst "Emmies," Coats, Lever Ord., Patons and Baldwins and Harrods were among others which attracted buyers. Conversely, Cable Ord. further eased to 59.

There was a little support for Mexican Eagles, but Oils generally were dull in sympathy with Leaseholds, which dropped to 66/10½ on the reduction in the interim.

RUGBY STAR KILLED

The death of the Rev. C. C. Tanner, killed in action after being reported missing when H.M.S. Fiji was sunk off Greece during the evacuation, was announced yesterday. Tanner played five times for England at Rugby—against Scotland in 1930 and against Scotland, Ireland, Wales and South Africa in 1932.

Temporary Major G. J. Dean, M.C., the England, Army and Harlequins' scrum-half, is reported wounded and a prisoner of war in Naples. MARKET REPORTS AND PRICES

DUBLIN IRREGULAR

There was little or no improvement in business on the Dublin Stock Exchange yesterday and, as usual, interest was mostly confined to local securities, prices of which again moved in an erratic fashion. Gilt-edged issues displayed renewed firmness, but Irish Industrials made a dull showing on balance.

There was good buying of Home Government Funds and gains touched 15/-.

Great Southern Rails weakened to 24 on the restriction in the company's services, but Great Northern Pref. recovered to 18. Alliance Gas Ord. hardened to 17/3. Todd Burns Ord. and Pref. marked fair gains, but Cement Ord. eased to 28/9.

FRIDAY, JULY 4, 1941.

"The Height of Folly"

Speaking last Wednesday in the Senate, Mr. Sean T. O'Kelly, Minister for Finance, displayed a welcome sense of realities and width of outlook. Dealing with Senator Douglas's comment that "it was the height of folly to go through a crisis such as the present without forming a National Government," Mr. O'Kelly said:—

"I certainly believe that it will take all the men of all the parties, all the seriously minded thinkers, economists, statesmen, and workers, pooling their knowledge, experience and judgment, in any way adequately to meet the serious times that we are living through, and are likely to live through. . . . for two, three or ten years to come."

It need hardly be said that we are in the fullest agreement, both with the Minister's estimate of the dangers which must be faced, and with the excellent principles of the way—the only way—in which they can be encountered without certainty of disaster to national interests. What of the means and the method by which such an urgently-needed union of forces may be achieved? Mr. O'Kelly, we believe wisely, rules out the proposal that a National Economic Council should be established. Such a body, even if endowed with the minimum of authority necessary to make its conclusions reasonably effective, inevitably would invade the essential functions of the Cabinet and the whole sphere of responsible government. As a body whose decisions necessarily would be subject to review by the Government, and subsequently by the Oireachtas, such an extra-parliamentary expedient could but add to present complications, slow down procedure during crises which may demand prompt decisions and action, and, incidentally, add materially to the labours of many officials engaged in absorbing administrative duties. Alternatively, a Council, representative of all parties and economic interests, if constituted as a purely investigating and advisory body, could prove to be nothing more than another of the exploratory commissions and tribunals, whose tedious proceedings end so consistently in consignment to Ministerial or Departmental pigeon-holes.

If that proposal for an economic imperium in imperio be ruled out, by what alternative means can the united front, so ardently urged by Mr. O'Kelly, be achieved? Were it possible to define and isolate economic issues, as defence questions have been defined and submitted to an inter-party parliamentary committee, much possibly might be said in favour of some such expedient; but it is quite obviously impossible to isolate issues which are inextricably interwoven with every phase and aspect of our industrial and social life. These issues, unlike that of military defence, are not merely contingent on possible eventualities, but arise from day to day as incidents of the "total" economic war, in which every section of the community now is engulfed. Another method has been proposed by which, it is claimed, more effective treatment of economic difficulties might be secured. That suggestion is that a council, or committee, of Ministers who are most directly concerned with economic problems—e.g., the Ministers for Finance, for Supply, for Industry and Commerce, and for Local Government—should be given authority to take decisions other than those of a purely "political" character. For some such means by which to short-circuit inter-departmental negotiations, and to expedite procedure, convincing arguments undoubtedly may be advanced; but as an alternative to vesting supreme executive authority in an all-party Government such a compromise would be valueless. It would, indeed, be a step backwards from Mr. O'Kelly's desideratum of a body in which executive decisions would rest with "men of all parties." It is an expedient which might well be adopted when "seriously-minded thinkers, economists, statesmen and workers" find possible means by which—having put their party hatchets in cold storage—to "pool" their wisdom and energies. Yet such a compromise might tend to prolong parliamentary conditions which have become exasperatingly controversial.

As we see the position, and as we apprehend the gravity of the crises which multiply as month follows month, there is one way, and only one way, by which Mr. O'Kelly's objective can be attained. Again and again, even before exigent war emergency needs had to be faced, we have pleaded for the formation of a National Government. We have urged that every national interest calls for the abandonment of divisions which represent survivals from the unhappy misunderstandings and hostilities of bygone days and conditions. We have tried to show not alone that such archaic party alignments bear no relationship to conditions which have developed during recent years, but that their perpetuation, even in pre-war circumstances, was calculated to exaggerate, rather than to moderate, national traditions of party worship and warfare. That such survivals have been allowed to assert themselves during days of the gravest national peril seems to be almost incredible. That any responsible political leader either should wish to reap party advantages under such conditions, or be unwilling to sacrifice sectional interests to national safety, is not less difficult to believe. Recently, a Minister was courageous enough to tell us that our choice was between hanging together or hanging separately. When Ministers and party leaders really are convinced of the need for that warning neither the sweets of office nor considerations of amour propre will be allowed to forbid a step which should have been taken long since. Mr. O'Kelly clearly desires some such end. When he and his colleagues adopt the only means by which that end may be reached a new chapter will have been opened in our sadly chequered history.

The Childrens' Days

"No definite decision," we are informed, has been taken by the Great Southern Railways regarding the proposal to do away with all Sunday services. A statement in a contemporary that coastal services from Dublin would be curtailed as from next Sunday has been described as "most misleading"; and we hope sincerely that it is. We all know that there is a shortage of coal, and that this shortage is likely to become more and more acute with the progress of time. Manifestly, there must be economies on the railways, and the Board of Directors of the Great Southern Company would not be doing its duty if it did not insist on the reduction of certain services. There are, however, seven days in the week. On some of these days trains over the Great Southern railway system—particularly between Dublin and suburban stations—run almost empty; but on Sundays the traffic is extremely heavy—so much so, indeed, that the company's resources are taxed to the uttermost to cope with it. Summer weather in Ireland is a rare bird. Our climate is notoriously fickle, and when we do get a few fine days our people like to take the fullest possible advantage of them. Last Sunday was a case in point. It was a gloriously fine day. The inhabitants of Dublin—soldier, sailor, tinker, tailor, rich man, poor man, beggarman, thief—and, above all, the children in their thousands, flocked to the seaside to spend the day on the sands. From Dublin to Greystones the beaches were thronged; and throughout the day the trains were filled to capacity—in some cases, indeed, far beyond their normal capacity. Killiney strand resembled Brighton or Ramsgate on a Bank Holiday. The esplanade at Bray was reminiscent of Blackpool or Southend, and even the more austere Greystones seemed for a day to forget its reputation, and handed itself over to the tender mercies of thousands of merry-making children. Without the train services this great exodus to the seaside would have been impossible. Trams and 'buses can do much to get the people out of Dublin on a fine day; but it is the railway that bears the brunt of the traffic; and where is the child who would not prefer a train to any other form of conveyance? We hope earnestly that the Great Southern Company will not carry out the threat to curtail the Sunday services, at any rate, so long as the fine weather lasts. The existence within a few miles of Dublin of so many spacious beaches is an inestimable boon to our city children, especially to those of the poorer classes, whose parents cannot afford a fortnight, or even a few days, by the sea. The country may be running short of coal. Within a few months a drastic curtailment of all railway services may become inevitable; but so long as it is at all possible, let there be no reduction in those services which cater for the children on a Sunday afternoon. From the national point of view, nothing could be more important than the health of the rising generation. The curtailment of Sunday services might save a few hundred tons of coal; but its effect on the national health and the national moral would be deplorable. Admittedly, economies are imperative; but surely they can be made in other ways. Few would grumble if the train services should be cut down on ordinary week-days; but Saturday and Sunday are the days for the children. Let them be spared at all costs.

Clothes and the Man

In view of the fact that it has now become almost impossible to obtain various types of clothes at will in Britain, the Bank of England has issued a statement on the matter. According to this statement, employés of the bank no longer will be obliged to wear their "customary suits of solemn black," but will be allowed to appear in whatever clothes they can manage to obtain; that they shall not appear in anything too extreme is left to their own discretion. No doubt, the employés will be relieved to hear this new statement, but whether or not it is a wise step, from the point of view of the dignity of the bank, is another matter. Up to a few years ago it would have been perfectly safe to leave the matter of clothes entirely to the good taste of the men; till then they were inclined to restrict their choice of sartorial styles to slight variations on the same theme, and their colours to black and grey and the more subdued shades of blue and brown. Their sole attempts to break away from convention were exhibited in their choice of socks and pull-overs, in which they showed a preference for "jazz" patterns. Nowadays, however, the old order has changed completely, and the clothes of the modern young man excels even those of the modern young woman for exotic brilliance. Sports jackets of bottle green or cerulean blue are the rule rather than the exception, and the sight of a young man wearing a checked suit, on which the checks are about six inches square, and coloured in the most vivid tints varying from pale green to deep purple, is not uncommon. One does not very frequently see young men wearing yellow and pink-checked suits, or with black velvet jackets, but such atrocities have been noted on occasion in Grafton street. Corduroys, of course, have come to stay, but recently the range of available colours has been considerably broadened. In the old days corduroys—of the navvy variety—usually were a distinctive mud-green or cabbage-water tint; nowadays one sees them every colour, from dove-grey to dark green. One could understand this eccentric style of clothing if all the offenders were actors or poets, but there are so many of them—in this city, at any rate—that one feels that they must include some members of what formerly was known as the "white-collar class." If any of the Bank of England clerks decide to emulate the smart young men of Dublin and appear at work in green corduroys, yellow sports coats and blue bow ties, the Bank may have to rescind its concession.

POWERSCOURT DEMESNE

Powerscourt Demesne, which has been closed to the public for the past few months as a precaution against the spread of foot-and-mouth disease, has now been opened again.

LONDON LETTER

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
THURSDAY NIGHT.

THE British Ministry of Information is likely to see a number of important changes in the near future, and these may be announced in an early debate in the House of Commons by Sir John Anderson. It is possible that the changes will be widespread, and that they will include something like a complete reconstruction of the propaganda policy now in operation. It is an indication of the unrest in the department that within twenty months there have been four Overseas Publicity Controllers at the Ministry, one, the late Lord Lloyd, holding the post for three days, resigning when he realised that he had responsibility without authority, a situation he found unwelcome. Each holder of the post has been most capable, and served with distinction in other directions, but it seems that they found themselves in an unsatisfactory position.

General Wavell

The public are somewhat surprised and concerned by the changes in the Middle East Command, not understanding the reason, but it now seems that it was not unexpected in official circles following upon recent happenings. Following brilliant successes came a period of reverses, costing all that had been gained, ending with Sollum. It is thought that General Wavell was too heavily worked, and this theory is borne out by the appointment of Captain Lyttelton as a member of the War Cabinet in Cairo with a view to give relief to the Commander-in-Chief. General Wavell's new appointment, however, is a very great and important one, and he will have more assistance than hitherto. In no sense has General Wavell been superseded or suffered anything detracting from the high regard in which he is held by all.

Fire-watching

It is expected that when the trade union deputation on the question of fire-watching waits upon the Home Secretary its members will ask that the men get five shillings a night, but may be prepared to accept less if provision is made for food to be obtained on the guarded premises. The employers, while not seriously objecting to these proposals, are of the opinion that it is scarcely fair that where fire-watching is not compulsory the work of providing men should fall upon them. It is not unlikely that there will be a conference of both parties to discuss the whole situation before agreement is reached. The demands of the union leaders are certainly difficult, since, apart from food and money, they ask for sleeping accommodation when it is unnecessary for the watchers to be on the look out, a matter not easily arranged.

Potato Crop

The release of twenty thousand tons of old potatoes for the public use calls attention to the fact that new potatoes may be more plentiful in about a fortnight's time. Grumbling on this point is undeserved by the farmer, as the season is fully two weeks late, and the late crop, due to circumstances which nobody can control. An official of the potato section of the Ministry of Food says that the potatoes look better than they are, as they are all tops and hardly any potato. It is not economical to lift potatoes that do not yield about three tons to the acre, and at the moment the majority of fields will only produce about half that weight. The high priced varieties on the market before the charges were controlled were mainly forced in hothouses.

Beer Shortage

The shortage of beer is a matter which should be given attention by the authorities, since it is worrying the working-men who are now engaged in hard work. Up to now he has taken it in good part, as he has the scarcity of the cigarette and the falling-off in food supplies. In the past the Chancellor of the Exchequer has always taken care to safeguard beer, while imposing heavy taxation on whiskey and other drinks consumed by the supposed better-off people, but the beer tradition was maintained even when income-tax jumped up to ten shillings in the pound. It is difficult to understand the reasons for the shortage, but it is said to be due to lack of transport in various parts of the country, including London.

Promenade Concerts

An Anglo-American concert will form one of the promenade series at the Albert Hall next month, when Mr. Winant, the United States Ambassador, will be present. The programme will open with Sousa's march, "Stars and Stripes for Ever," followed by the overture, "When Johnny Comes Marching Home," by Roy Harris. Samuel Barber's symphony in one movement, the first American work to be given at the Salzburg Musical Festival in 1937, will be part of the programme, which will conclude with the "Star Spangled Banner" and the British National Anthem. The promenade concerts are being held at the Albert Hall this year, as the Queen's Hall is a casualty.

AN IRISHMAN'S DIARY

Shaw and Paderewski

I am thinking (writes a correspondent) that one of the old school of musical critics—indeed, the doyen of them—will be recalling these days some of the hard things he wrote about Paderewski when he burst upon London in 1890. The writer in question is none other than George Bernard Shaw, then one of the bright young men contributing to Edmund Yates's weekly, The World.

He had not then shown any evidence of the dramatic powers which were soon to make him an outstanding personality in the theatrical world, but he was literally raising the hair of some of the artists who were then coming into the limelight, and destined to remain for years after in its full brilliance. One of them was Paderewski, about whom the London newspapers' first impressions were far from favourable. Only The Times had a half-hearted appreciation of his style and methods.

Shaw was characteristically forthright in hitting out. If he was not actually devastating, he led his readers to believe that the Pole would never climb to the top of the tree. In one sentence he wrote that Paderewski was a harmonious blacksmith who laid a concerto on the piano as upon an anvil, and hammered it with exuberant joy. That passage irked the impressionable artist, but his feelings were much mollified when he discovered that in the notice of his second concert Shaw praised his playing of Schumann's "Sonata," and even linked his name with Rubenstein.

Later on both met, and passing years cemented the friendship between them. The pianist said of Shaw in reference to his first critique that "he wrote not so much as my opponent, but as the opponent of public opinion."

Marsh's Library

One of the participants in last Sunday's "Question Time" stumbled over the problem of what was the oldest library in Dublin. Afterwards he admitted that Marsh's Library was in his mind, but he wondered if there possibly could be an older—in Trinity College, for example—and while he was wondering he was "gonged."

Actually Marsh's is the oldest public library in Ireland. It was founded by Archbishop Narcissus Marsh, whose monument is in the adjoining St. Patrick's Cathedral, and the interior is said to be unchanged from the arrangement first made in 1703.

It contains many treasures, among them a copy of Clarendon's "History of the Great Rebellion, with marginal notes by the hand of Dean Swift, expressed, I understand, in a far from clerical style. Interesting bindings from the fifteenth to the eighteenth century are to be seen in glass cases.

Miss Natalie Moya

We Irish have an amazing habit of not knowing anything about our own fellow-countrymen and women who go over the other side and make a name for themselves.

For instance, the other day Mr. Paul Farrell introduced me to a charming young woman called Natalie Moya, of whom, I venture to say, Irish audiences know very little if anything. Although she is very well-known to British audiences, and has acted and broadcast many times both in Britain and even in South Africa and Australia, she has never yet acted in Dublin.

Miss Moya's real name is Mullally, and she belongs to a County Tipperary family. Her first appearances on the stage were in child parts in Shakespeare plays at the Stratford-on-Avon Festival.

For a while after that she played what are known as ingenues, both in Britain and South Africa for a couple of years, to gain experience. On her return she played in the part of Viera in "A Month in the Country," and after several other parts went on a tour of Australia in the part of Laura in "Young Woodley."

Leading Roles

After a year's absence she returned to play with great success Marion in "The Far-Off Hills." Then followed a succession of leading rôles, including Pegeen in "The Playboy."

Natalie Moya is married to the painter and actor, G. R. Schjelderup, who acted in Dublin a few years ago in the Gate Theatre's production of "Murder in the Cathedral," and some of his pictures have been exhibited at the Waddington Galleries. He is at present on the acting staff of the B.B.C., and both he and his wife have broadcast on numerous occasions.

Just before the war they opened a private subscription theatre, The Torch, Knightsbridge which presented, among other things, "Katie Roche." This play was produced for them by Lennox Robinson, who went over from Dublin specially.

At the moment Natalie Moya is in Dubin visiting her mother, who lives here in the city, and, owing to the difficulty of travelling in these times, she may remain here for a while.

It is possible, too, she tells me, that she and Paul Farrell may do a play together later on in the year.

Where the Pennies Go

At the present moment, according to the newspapers, everybody seems to be rather worried about the pennies—and coppers generally—which seem to be disappearing.

There is, it seems, a severe shortage of copper coins of all kinds, not so great a shortage as that in Belfast, but then there is no apparent reason for the shortage here, as there is in the North. At least I did not think there was until a couple of days ago, when I received a note from a minister who officiates at a church outside the city.

In a very charming letter he points out that he has at last solved the question of where the pennies and halfpennies are going—into the collection plate in his church. He also repeats for me the story about the penny and the half-crown, which might bear repetition here. The latter was lording it over his poor relation when the penny silenced him with the retort: "Well, at any rate, I go to church more often than you do."

DIMINUTION IN COAL STOCKS

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.
CORK, Thursday.

Stocks of household coal in Cork have now been reduced to such a level that merchants are finding it impossible to supply even the quarter-ton ration allowance for July and August. It was stated to-day that the prospects of fresh stocks are remote, and that coal merchants are advising their customers to get turf as a substitute and to lay in substantial stocks of it.

STRONG ATTACKS ON TRADE UNION BILL

DAIL DEBATE ON HOUSING FINANCE

ON the Committee stage of the Trade Union Bill in the Dail yesterday, Mr. W. NORTON (Lab., Carlow-Kildare) said that the English trade unions were anxious to come under the law of this country, because at present they had no legal existence here. The bill was an attempt to dominate the trade union movement and put a premium on the poaching of members of the small Irish unions, who did not have the money to meet the Ministerial ransom. The Minister would regret his association with a dastardly bill of that kind.

Mr. D. MORRISSEY (F.G., Tipperary) said that the effect of the bill would be to wipe out the Irish unions, because there was not an amalgamated union that could not meet its terms.

Mr. J. HURLEY (Lab., Cork) said that he had never seen an English union attempt to interfere with their domestic policy.

MINISTER'S REPLY

THE MINISTER FOR INDUSTRY AND COMMERCE (Mr. Sean MacEntee) claimed that he had shown the ulterior motive of those who had obstructed the passage of the bill, and that once again they were confronted with an attempt to prevent the organisation of the Irish trade union movement which would rid it of abuses which had been disastrous to the country's economic development.

Proposals of the Irish trade unions to secure a far-reaching reorganisation of Irish trade unionism were defeated by the votes controlled by representatives of English unions, who came to Ireland specially for the occasion. He was not unfriendly and was sensible to what trade unions in England had done for workers generally, but he believed this was an impertinent procedure.

Dr. J. HANNIGAN (Ind., Dublin, S.) said that Irishmen who were members of English trade unions had never tried to sabotage industrial progress by strikes, and they were not going to be dictated to by new-found industrialists like Deputies Childers and Maguire.

A CONFERENCE

Mr. W. T. COSGRAVE (F.G., Cork City) hoped that they would have all-Irish trade unions here, but he did not think this was a practical proposition so long as members of the building trade had to go to England for employment. The Minister would be well advised to have a conference of the persons concerned, so that they might reach a more agreeable method of settling the matter. It was serious that no provision was made for union officials, who would find themselves on the "scrap heap."

Mr. NORTON said that he wanted Irish workers to be organised in Irish trade unions, and he wanted to build up the Irish unions with a national nerve centre. The unions should be encouraged to amalgamate voluntarily, and to do this they should get assistance from the State. Would the Minister drop the bill if there was a majority vote against it at the coming Trade Union Conference, with Irish and English unions voting either together or separately?

Mr. W. DAVIN (Lab., Leix-Offaly) said that the best way to give expression to what was in the Minister's mind was to set up a body under the chairmanship of the Minister or a high official, after this stage of the bill was passed, to try and get agreed absorption on the lines the Minister had in mind.

Provision to meet the points raised by Mr. Cosgrave on this and the preceding section was promised by the Minister, who said that he was not trying to put the trade union movement into a cast-iron mould, but compelling it to consider the question of amalgamation and reorganisation seriously. He was bound to give six months to allow for reorganisation, but he was prepared to give the unions a reasonable time beyond that period.

The section was carried by 53 to 30.

Mr D. MORRISSEY (speaking on Section 22) said that never in its nineteen years' existence had the House been asked to pass such a dangerous piece of legislation.

Section 22 was passed by 49 votes to 24.

HOUSING FINANCE

On the Committee stage of the Housing (Amendment) Bill, 1941, Mr. J. A. COSTELLO (F.G., Dublin Townships) moved an amendment providing that the Minister for Industry and Commerce in addition to the Minister for Local Government, should consider the question of the guarantee to be given by local authorities to building societies.

Mr. P. J. RUTTLEDGE, Minister for Local Government, rejected the amendment but said that in the ordinary course his Department would consult the Department of Industry and Commerce.

Supporting the amendment, Mr. J. HICKEY (Labour Cork) said that a building society in Cork, having got a grant of £10,000 and a loan of £3,000 from the Corporation, began to build a scheme of fifty-six houses. When the houses were half-built, the society was unable to proceed, and the Corporation had to take them over. When the finances of the society were investigated, it was found that it had started operations with a total capital of £7. They had two public utility societies in Cork which had built a great many houses and acquired from the Corporation ground which had been purchased out of public moneys. One of these societies had gone into liquidation, and the ground rents were now in the hands of a foreigner.

Mr. J. M. DILLON (F.G., Monaghan), supporting the amendment, said that the Department of Local Government had not the necessary machinery to investigate fully the building societies.

The MINISTER replied that the societies contemplated in the bill were well known in the country.

The amendment was defeated.

The Committee stage was passed, and the report stage fixed for Wednesday next.

Progress was reported, and the Dail adjourned until 10.30 to-day.

OBITUARY

MR. JAMES ROBINSON

The death occurred on Wednesday last of Mr. James Robinson, solicitor, of Gatehampton, Foxrock, and 119 St. Stephen's Green, Dublin. Mr. Robinson was admitted a solicitor in 1890, and received the M.A. degree of Dublin University in 1892. He was appointed General Solicitor for Lunatics in 1918, and, on the death of Mr. Frank Gordon, became temporary General Solicitor for Minors. He is survived by two sons and two daughters.

The death of Mr. Robinson was mentioned by the President of the High Court when he sat yesterday morning to hear lunacy and minor matters. "Before I take up the list this morning," he said, "I feel it only fit that I should refer to the death of the General Solicitor. It was with great regret that I learned of it. For over twenty years he had been General Solicitor in Lunacy, and for some time past he had been working as General Solicitor for Minors. Speaking of the period during which I have been in charge of lunacy and minors, I can only say that his zeal and devotion in the interests of the wards of Court have been of invaluable assistance to me and to the officers of this Court in caring for those under our charge. I may add that during the earlier period, when other judges presided over the Court of Lunacy and Minors, I am well aware that they had the same experience of the work of the General Solicitor. His industry, I am afraid, was so great that it hastened his end. His fairness to all persons with whom he came in contact has been recognised for many years. Outstanding among his many qualities were those two great qualities—wonderful industry and fairness."

PRESENTATION TO EDUCATIONALIST

FORMER PRINCIPAL OF ALEXANDRA COLLEGE

IN the presence of a distinguished gathering of former pupils and friends, a presentation portrait of Mrs. Preston, M.A., former Lady Principal, was unveiled in the Jellicoe Hall, Alexandra College, Dublin, yesterday. The painting is the work of Mr. Leo Whelan, R.H.A., and with revealing genius the artist has reflected those qualities of earnestness and graciousness, coupled with the kindly smile, which won for Mrs. Preston the friendship and admiration of all with whom she came in contact.

The Archbishop of Dublin, who presided, said that it was a very happy circumstance to be unveiling a permanent memorial to one who had won the affection of all with whom she worked—the function was the happier in that Mrs. Preston was still with them.

The unveiling ceremony was performed by the Hon. Bishop Plunket, senior member of the College Council.

Presenting the portrait to Mrs. Preston, on behalf of the subscribers, Mrs. Starkie said that she had been privileged to have had the friendship of Mrs. Preston for over fifty years. She recalled those early days when Mrs. Preston, as the young M.A. and professor, flitted through the college halls and classrooms at a time when a lady professor was a phenomenon. Mrs. Preston had through all these years been the valued assistant of Miss White, always understanding and sympathetic in all the great schemes of expansion. Always Mrs. Preston was standing by, alert, the ready helpful critic, overcoming all difficulties and never dismayed. In all the college developments Mrs. Preston was the enthusiastic co-operator. She was the natural successor to Miss White, and under her guidance the college had continued to expand.

Miss M. S. Joynt, vice-principal of the college and a colleague on the teaching staff of the college for over forty years, joined with Mrs. Starkie in asking Mrs. Preston to accept the portrait.

Mrs. Preston accepted the portrait and, returning thanks with deep emotion, said that it was the most distinguished day of her life. It was an honour that she never dreamed of that her portrait should hang in that Jellicoe Hall beside those of men and women whom Alexandra College wished to hold in honour and remembrance.

LOOKING BACK

She could not help looking back over the years since, in the eighties of last century, she first came to that college—those were the days when they still had Tennyson's "Princess"—before "Princess Ida." She referred to Miss Latouche, Archbishop Trench, man of letters and poet; Dr. Robert Percival Graves, first secretary, and others. Above all she spoke of Miss White. No function could take place in that hall, said Mrs. Preston, without recalling Miss White's name. The record of her doings was marvellous, and to her she personally owed the deepest gratitude. In remembering the past, they must not forget the present and the future, and it was with eager hope that they looked forward to fresh, strong growth under their new Principal, Miss Holloway. It was gladdening to see already abundant promise of that new growth. "There is an old saying," concluded Mrs. Preston: 'It is to have lived twice when you can enjoy the recollection of your former life.' That joy is mine."

Mrs. Preston then asked the Archbishop, as visitor, to accept the portrait for Alexandra College.

The Archbishop, on behalf of the Council, accepted the gift, which he said would be a valuable artistic addition to the possessions of the college.

Miss M. Webb, on behalf of the subscribers, who hailed from Japan, Hong Kong, India, Burma, Chili and other far countries presented Mrs. Preston with a souvenir album of the subscribers' names and a personal gift.

Among those present were:—Miss Holloway, Principal of the College; Mr. Leo Whelan, R.A.; the Archdeacon of Glendalough; Miss Lewis, Mrs. Barton, Miss Scott, Miss Shillington, Mrs. Best, Mrs. Boxwell, Miss M. Griffith, Miss M. Seeds, Mrs. Auchmuty, Misses Brooks, Miss Boydell, Mr. and Miss Bewley, Mr. and Mrs. Chillingworth, Prof. and Mrs. A. H. Dixon, Dr. and Mrs. Ninian Falkiner, Mrs. French, Dr. George Furlong, Mrs. Grove White, Dr. and Mrs. Hanna, Mrs. and Miss Haythornthwaite, Mrs. Hewson, Miss Maver, Miss Smith, Miss Mahaffy, Mrs. Marshall, Mrs. C. She was pillion riding with another bank official, Mr. James Browne, of Roseneath Villas, Military Hill, Cork, when the motor cycle which he was driving crashed into a tree to avoid a lorry and burst into flames, setting fire to the tree. Mr. Browne was to-day reported to be in a critical condition. They were both conveyed to the Mercy Hospital, near which the accident occurred.

UNEMPLOYMENT IN THE CATERING TRADE

BY OUR INDUSTRIAL CORRESPONDENT.

Increasing unemployment in the catering trade is causing uneasiness among members of the Hotels and Restaurants Branch of the Irish Transport and General Workers' Union. Mr. Frank Purcell, branch secretary, told a special meeting summoned to discuss the matter, that unemployment among the casual workers had increased to a "tremendous extent." Trade depression in hotels and restaurants, caused by the war, had resulted in a reduction of the permanent staffs, and the suspension of the Spring Show and Horse Show, race meetings and general restriction of the number of public functions had also aggravated the problem.

The branch decided to take severe disciplinary action against members who aided employers to utilise permanent employés for casual work, and also to take action against employers who took part in this practice.

AIR SWEEPS OVER FRANCE

first attack on the ship, which was being escorted by two well-armed trawlers, near Le Touquet. Reconnaissance aircraft confirmed that, while no actual damage could be seen, she was slowed down considerably.

A torpedo-carrying Beaufort found her again as daylight was fading. The rear guner saw the torpedo's track running true for the ship. A few seconds later a column of water was flung high into the air as the torpedo struck her.

Amplifying the communiqué, the Air Ministry News Service states that at Bremen the shipbuilding yards, where cruisers, destroyers and submarines are built, were one objective, and the bombers spread destruction in the industrial districts, as well as in the shipyards along the river. After the explosion of one huge bomb searchlights went out and anti-aircraft guns stopped for several minutes.

At Cologne there were impressive fires on both sides of the Rhine.

Over Holland a heavy bomber shot down a Messerschmitt 110 in flames. It was seen burning on the ground.

EAGLE SQUADRON PILOT MISSING

Pilot Officer William Isaac Hall, of the Eagle Squadron, formed for United States volunteers, is reported missing from British air operations on Wednesday, when the squadron had its first big engagement over Northern France, during which it destroyed three Messerschmitts 109's. Pilot Officer Hall is the first member of the American Eagle Squadron to be lost in actual operations.

HIT BOMBER IN MID-AIR

WOUNDED PILOT'S FEAT

How a wounded sergeant pilot of the Royal Air Force held on at the controls of his 'plane after he had been severely wounded in the neck, and had at one time fainted through loss of blood causing a mid-air collision with another bomber, was told by the Air Ministry News Service last night.

During the attack on Merville aerodrome on Wednesday afternoon the sergeant pilot, who was captain of a Blenheim bomber, was injured by a bullet from an attacking Messerschmitt, an important vein being severed. The observer, by pressing his thumb to the vein, stopped the flow of blood and the pilot was able to keep the aircraft on an even keel. Then another Messerschmitt attacked, but the bomber's rear gunner got in a burst and the Messerschmitt, with one wing torn off, went to pieces in the air.

The Blenheim was then flying in formation with other bombers on the homeward journey, and they were attacked by nine more Messerschmitts. One of the Messerschmitts was hit in the cockpit. It turned over, and was not seen to pull out of a long vertical dive, and it is thought that the pilot was killed outright.

Throughout this time the observer was tending the Blenheim's wounded pilot, who, having lost much blood in spite of the pressure on his neck, collapsed in a momentary faint. His aircraft shot forward among the formation of bombers, and collided with one of them, which was turned upside down by the impact. The pilot, however, was able to right it.

BACK OVER BRITAIN

When the formation arrived over Britain the wounded pilot, feeling that he was unable to carry on, told his crew to bale out. They persuaded him to let them stay while he attempted a landing, and the leader of the formation ordered the Blenheim to break away and make for the nearest aerodrome. When the pilot tried to put his flaps down, ready for landing, the aircraft immediately went into a spin. The flap had been shot away in the encounter with the Messerschmitts. But he still retained sufficient strength to correct the spin, and bring the Blenheim down safely.

The pilot, now in hospital, is expected to recover.

T.C.D. NOTES

RESULTS OF RECENT ELECTIONS

Trinity Term officially ends this week, although, of course, lectures have been over for some time. The Library closes on Monday, and reopens on Monday, 21st. Except for this fortnight, the reading-room of the Library will be open from ten until four during the Long Vacation.

Many candidates for Moderatorship express the wish that it might be found possible to keep the reading-room open during the evening also. A petition to this effect was drawn up during the Long Vacation last year, and received a very large number of signatures. It is believed that the authorities have had the matter under consideration, and most readers hope that an arrangement more convenient for themselves may soon be reached. The main effect of the present system is that the College booksellers are benefited, for many more text-books are bought than would be the case if the Library were open from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m.

RECRUITING

Recruiting for the second line medical is gathering momentum in College, and, although Arts Term has ended, there are many students still up who have responded to the appeal. Voluntary service is the principle on which recruiting is carried out, and there are no commitments involved for volunteers during the six months of their service, unless, of course, war breaks out here, in which case they will take up their duties in hospitals. All faculties are eligible, and some arts students feel that their services as second line volunteers are urgently required. "This branch of our Army," says a spokesman here, "presents an opportunity of serving on the medical side without being held down to any barrack routine and with every facilitiy for continuing studies and sitting for examinations.

TENNIS AND CRICKET

The Tennis Club have been having an almost uniformly successful season. On Monday last they defeated Clontarf by five matches to three, Solomons and Read beating Brown and Payne in straight sets. The club meets Mount Pleasant in the final of Section B of the League.

The 1st XI of the Cricket Club is meeting Leinster C.C. in the final of the Leinster Cup. Their record this year, one of their spokesmen informs me, has owed much to the consistently good batting of Carry, Jacobson, Shrago and Luce, and to the bowling of Barnes. Next year's captain will be J. V. Luce.

Washington, Thursday.—The United States is to supply upwards of 600,000 bales of cotton to Britain under the Lease and Land Act.

STALIN ON "SERIOUS DANGER"

"HITLER WILL BE BEATEN"

"NO MERCY" TO "THE ENEMY"

PRESS ASSOCIATION TELEGRAM.

STALIN, broadcasting to the Russian people yesterday morning from all Soviet radio stations, said:—"Hitler's Army will be beaten likt those of Napoleon and of Wilhelm (the Kaiser Wilhelm)."

In the event of a Red Army retreat, Stalin ordered a repetition of the tactics employed in the 1812 campaign, against Napoleon's advancing armies, when the Russians laid the country waste.

He said that farmers must take away all their cattle and corn. All valuable material which could not be taken away, including corn and fuel, must be destroyed. There must be guerilla warfare, with the blowing up of bridges and the firing of forests dépôts and trains.

THE ADDRESS

"Comrades, citizens, brothers and sisters, fighters of our Army and Navy," he began, "I am addressing myself to you in the grave moment of the attacks of Hitler's Germany on our fatherland. In spite of the heroic resistance of the Red Army, in spite of the fact that the best divisions of the enemy and the best units of his air force have already been beaten and have found their grave on the battlefields, the enemy continues to push forward and to throw new forces on the front.

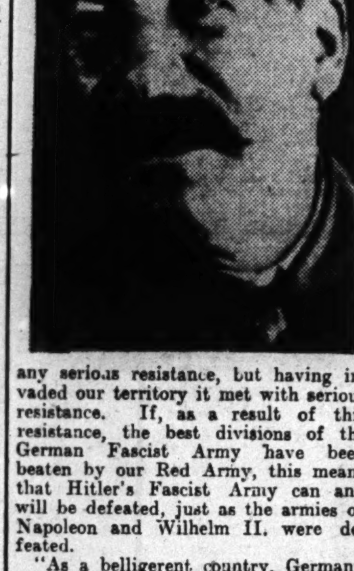

"Hitler's armies have succeeded in seizing Lithuania, the greater part of Latvia, the western part of White Russia and part of Western Ukraine.

"The Fascist Air Force extends the operations of its bombers, and subjects to air raids Murmansk, Orsha, Mogiliv, Smolensk, Kiev, Odessa and Sebastopol.

ARMIES NOT INVINCIBLE

"A serious danger is threatening our country. How could it have happened that our glorious Red Army has surrendered to the Fascist troops a number of our towns? Are German Fascist armies really invincible, a is continually proclaimed by the boastful Fascist propagandist? History show that there are no invincible armies. Napoleon's army was considered to be invincible, but it was defeated by the Russian, English and Prussian armies.

"This army had not hitherto met any serious resistance, but having invaded our territory it met with serious resistance. If, as a result of this resistance, the best divisions of the German Fascist Army have been beaten by our Red Army, this means that Hitler's Fascist Army can and will be defeated, just as the armies of Napoleon and Wilhelm II. were defeated.

"As a belligerent country, Germany was already mobilised. The 170 divisions flung by Germany against the U.S.S.R., and moved by her to the frontiers of the U.S.S.R., stood in full readiness and awaited a signal for the offensive, whereas the Soviet troops had to be mobilised and moved to the frontier.

PACT VIOLATED

"A fact which is not without importance is that Fascist Germany suddenly, and with perfidy, violated the Pact of Non-Aggression concluded in 1939 between her and the U.S.S.R. without regard to the fact that she would be considered by the whole world as an aggressor.

"One might ask how could it have happened that the Soviet Government consented to conclude the Pact of Non-Aggression with such felons and monsters as Hitler and Ribbentrop?

"Had not the Soviet Government committed thereby a mistake? Of course not. A pact of non-aggression is a pact of peace between two countries. It was just such a pact that Germany offered to us in 1939. Could the Soviet Government reject such an offer? I think that no peace-loving country should reject an agreement with a neighbouring State, even if at the head of that State stand such monsters and cannibals as Hitler and Ribbentrop—this, naturally, on the indispensable condition that the peace agreement does not infringe, either directly or indirectly, the territorial integrity, independence and honour of the peace-loving country.

QUESTION OF GAIN

"It is a well-known fact that the Pact of Non-Aggression between Germany and the U.S.S.R. was just such a pact.

"What have we gained by concluding a pact with Germany? We assured to our country peace during eighteen months, as well as an opportunity of getting our forces ready in the event of Germany attacking our country despite the pact. This is a gain for us and a loss to Fascist Germany.

"What did Germany gain and lose in feloniously tearing up a pact and in committing aggression on the U.S.S.R.? She has thereby secured for her troops a certain short-term position of advantage, but she has lost, from the political point of view, through being unmasked in the eyes of the whole world as a bloodthirsty aggressor.

"Our troops are fighting heroically against an enemy armed to the teeth and supplied abundantly with tanks and aeroplanes. The Red Army and the Red Navy, overcoming numerous difficulties, are fighting selflessly for every inch of Soviet land.

RED ARMY'S VALOUR

"The main forces of the Red Army, provided with thousands of tanks and aircraft, are entering into action. The valour of the Red Army fighters is unprecedented. Our enemy is cruel and merciless. He intends to seize our land bathed in our sweat, to seize our wheat and our oil, the fruits of our labour.

"It is, therefore, a question whether the peoples of the Soviet Union shall be free or reduced to slavery.

"The Soviet citizens should mobilise themselves and reorganise their whole work on a new war footing. They should have no mercy for the enemy. Nor should we have any place in our ranks for grumblers, cowards, or panic-mongers and deserters. Our men must be fearless in the struggle and practise self-denial.

"Great Lenin, who founded our State, used to say that the basic qualities of the Soviet men should be valient and daring.

LEAVE NOTHING TO THE ENEMY

"The Red Army and Navy, and all the citizens of the Soviet Union must defend every inch of the Soviet soil, fight to the last drop of their blood, defend their towns and villages and show their daring and ingenuity.

"In case of the retreat of the Red Army, all railway rolling stock must be brought away. We must not leave a single engine to the enemy, nor a single railway coach. We must not leave a single pound of grain or a single gallon of petrol to the enemy.

"The collective farmers must take away all their cattle, and place their corn in the care of State organisations to be transported to the rear zone. All valuable materials, including non-ferrous metals, corn and fuel, which cannot be taken away must be resolutely destroyed.

"In the areas occupied by the enemy there must be guerilla warfare everywhere, with blowing up of bridges and roads, with wrecking telephone and telegraph communications, and with setting forests, dépôts and trains on fire.

"It is necessary to create in invaded areas unbearable conditions for the enemy and all his accomplices.

FAITHFUL ALLIES

"In this war of liberation we shall not be alone. In this great war we shall have faithful allies in the person of the peoples of Europe and America, including the German people itself oppressed by Hitler's satraps.

"Our war for the freedom of our fatherland is merged into the struggle of the peoples of Europe and America for their independent freedom.

"This is the meaning of the historic speech of the British Prime Minister, Mr. Churchill, about aid to the Soviet Union, and of the declaration of the Government of the United States of America concerning their readiness to give assistance to our entry.

"In order to mobilise rapidly all the forces of the peoples of the U.S.S.R., a State Committee of Defence has already begun to function, and appeals to the whole people to organise itself around the party of Lenin and Stalin, and around the Soviet Government, in order to support with self-denial the Red Army and Navy and in order to annihilate the enemy for our victory."

Professor J. J. Nolan, Registrar, University College, Dublin, presenting a cup for literary competitions in Technical Treatises to Eamon De hOir, Hon. Secretary, U.C.D. Gaelic Society, on behalf of the Governing Body.

COLLAPSE OF A DUBLIN HOUSE

POSSIBLY DUE TO BOMBING

INQUEST ON THREE VICTIMS

THE jury were of the opinion that the collapse of the house was possibly due to the effects of the bombing on May 31 and the old age of the house itself, when a verdict was returned at yesterday's resumed inquest on the three persons who lost their lives when a house at 46 Old Bride street collapsed on June 1st. The three persons were: Mrs. Bridget Lynskey (29), her five months old baby, Noel, and Samuel O'Brien (72). The inquest was held by the Coroner (Dr. D. A. MacErlean), with a jury, at the City Morgue.

Mr. Felix Sherry and Mr. D. Bell (instructed by Messrs. John Hawthorne and Co.) appeared for the owner of the premises; Mr. A. E. Ashton appeared for the next-of-kin of Mrs Lynskey; Mr. D. Farrell represented the tenants of 47 and 48 Old Bride street, and Mr. J. J. Walsh appeared for the Dublin Corporation.

Mr. Francis Lynskey said on that morning he heard a crash and saw the roof falling. He called his wife, telling her what had happened. He proceeded to remove his two elder children from the room. For some time past the walls of the house appeared to be in poor condition, and in response to an application he had received a key on the previous day from the Corporation for a house at Crumlin, to which he intended to move.

To Mr Bell—There were vibrations in the house as a result of the bombing at the North Strand road.

RESCUE WORK

Patrick Hodgins, 15 Cross Kevin street, said that he went to the scene and found that the wall plate, when falling, had formed a small cavity. He saw a woman lying on her back, with a timber joist across her body. With the aid of a saw and hammer, he got the woman clear. He then rescued another woman, and was later treated in hospital for gas-poisoning.

Mr. Walsh (for the Corporation) and the foreman of the jury complimented him on his heroic act.

Mr. H. G. Simms, Housing Architect, said that they had three rescue squads working at North Strand, and they arrived at Old Bride street at 11 a.m. Meantime, Mrs. O'Brien, aged 60, had been removed alive from the débris Mrs. Lynskey and her baby were reported to be still missing. Witness saw Mr. Lynskey in the Meath Hospital, and he indicated where his wife should be in the house. He hastened back to Bride street, to find that Mrs. Lynskey's body had been recovered at about 1.40 p.m.

Mr. Farrell: "What was your opinion of the house, from the point of view of suitability or safety?"—"I was not aware of the condition of the house prior to the collapse. They were over 100 years old, and nearing the end of their normal life."

Mr. M. Mullin, Chief Inspector, Dangerous Buildings, said that there was no report from any of the people that the houses were not all right.

Mr. J. Boland, Anglesea road, stated that he managed the house for his mother, and noticed nothing wrong. Tenants had been there for close on forty years.

The jury returned a verdict that Bridget and Noel Lynskey died from asphyxia and cardiac failure, as a result of being buried under débris, and that Samuel O'Brien died from shock and hæmorrhage, the result of injuries received in the collapse of 46 Old Bride street. Sympathy was expressed with the relatives.

PRIMARY SCHOOL STATISTICS

The report of the Department of Education for 1939-'40, which was circulated yesterday, does not contain the usual review of the position in regard to elementary, secondary and vocational education. The number of primary schools on 30th June, 1940, the report states, was 5,114. During the year 46 schools were amalgamated, resulting in the elimination of 23 as separate institutions. The number of schools teaching all subjects through Irish was 643 and the number teaching partly through Irish was 2,205. The average number of pupils on rolls in the primary schools was 464,108, and the average daily attendance was 389,390—representing an average of almost 84 per cent.

The total number of teachers employed was 13,289, 8,994 of whom were principal and assistant teachers and 1,938 members of religious communities. There were 1,665 teachers without any Irish certificate, 3,485 with the ordinary certificate, 8,079 with the bilingual certificate, and 925 with the Ard-Teastas. The number of pupils in secondary schools was 37,670, of whom 20,724 were boys and 15,213 were girls, while 1,733 attended mixed secondary schools. In the vocational schools there were 23,474 students, composed of 11,246 boys and 12,228 girls.

REVISED STATE ESTIMATES

REDUCED SUMS FOR TURF DEVELOPMENT

A revised estimate for the Department of Industry and Commerce for the current year, circulated yesterday, makes a new provision for £39,105 for mineral development. Out of this amount £20,000 is being provided by way of advance to the Slieveardagh Coal Co., and £15,000 is to form an advance to the Mineral Exploration and Development Co.

The sum to be expended on turf development, through the Turf Development Board, is £19,000, compared with £68,755 in the original estimate. The cost of administration has been reduced from £13,400 to £3,500, and the grant for the development of Clonsast Bog from £30,000 to £6,500, while the estimate for further development of Lullymore Bog, Co. Kildare, has been reduced from £21,315 to £7,000.

An estimate for special emergency services will be introduced later in the year in connection with bog development. The total original estimate has been reduced by £10,267 to £252,657.

AVOCA SCHOOL, BLACKROCK

Avoca School, Blackrock, celebrated its Golden Jubilee last Saturday, when the annual sports and garden party were held. The same evening Professor E. A. Alton, S.F.,T.C.D., was the guest of honour at the Old Boys' dinner.

Avoca was founded on September 1, 1891, by Mr. A. A. McDonagh, M.A., a brilliant classical scholar of Trinity College, Dublin. He had only six pupils, compared with the 120 boys of the modern Avoca. The school premises then were situated at the corner of Sydney and Avoca avenue, Blackrock.

For the first two years Rugby was the school game, but then a change was made, and Avoca became one of the best hockey schools in County Dublin. Since that date it has won the Senior Schools' Hockey Cup on innumerable occasions, and has produced many notable international players, including the Peterson brothers, all five of whom represented their country.

In 1898 the school moved to larger premises in Carysfort avenue, and Mr. McDonagh continued to hold the reins until 1934, when he died. He was succeeded by Mr. C. Parker, who, helped by his wife, carried on the good work so successfully that two years later it was necessary to move once again to more extensive buildings, this time in Newtownpark avenue, Blackrock.

To mark the occasion of the jubilee, the Parent Teacher Association presented a cup, to be held by the boy voted by his companions to be the best "all-rounder" of the year.

WALL STREET

NEW YORK, Thursday.

Trading on the Stock Exchange to-day was very slow, with the Russo-German uncertainties keeping bidders wary. In view of the fact that many are taking a long week-end traders were chary of extending commitments.

The turnover of 460,000 shares comprised 730 issues, of which 370 advanced and 161 declined.

Aircrafts attracted attention in view of the mounting Army and Navy orders, while Motors were steady in face of Mr. Knudsen's warning of a more severe disturbance to normal conditions. Oil shares were the high-light of the market owing to Standard Oil of New Jersey's penetration to new high levels throughout the week.

The market finished at the day's best, and the closing tone was steady.—(Reuter.)

Simla, Thursday.—The three occupants were killed when an R.A.F. aircraft crashed at Karachi, it is officially announced here to-day.—(Reuter.)

SLANDER SUIT OF MINISTER

MAID'S CHARGES DENIED

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

BELFAST, Thursday.

The hearing was continued in the King's Bench, Belfast, to-day of the slander suit for £1,000 damages brought by the Rev. James Irwin Stoops, The Manse, Maguiresbridge, against Bella Jane Wilson, Kilnakirk, County Fermanagh (28), domestic servant. Plaintiff alleged that the defendant had accused him of being the father of her twin children, born on 25th July, 1939.

The defendant identified a letter which had been addressed to Mr. Stoops.

CHARGES DENIED

Giving evidence, the plaintiff said that he had been minister in Maguiresbridge for twenty-five years. It was untrue that early in 1937 he began paying attention to defendant by putting his arms round her or kissing her. Never at any time had he intercourse with her, and he did not pay her £10 when she was leaving the manse in December, 1937. He did not hear from her until April, 1938, when he received a letter from her mother asking him to visit defendant, as she was dangerously ill with pleurisy and her own clergyman was not available. At that time he did not know defendant had given birth to a child the previous January, and she did not tell him. It was untrue that he gave her £2 to pay for the boarding-out of the child, and that he sent her £2 per month. He did not write an advertisement for the adoption of the child, and did not know of the child's existence until after the Presbytery meeting in Maguiresbridge.

He had no communication with defendant until the following September, when she returned to the manse in response to his wife's letter. It was untrue that he had any improper relationship with her. She left again in May, his wife receiving a letter stating that she was required at home. He did not know she was pregnant when she left the manse.

He had no communication from her till July 25, when he received a telegram to visit her. He did so, taking his two daughters with him; but they stayed in the car while he was in the house. Mrs. Wilson met him at the door, telling him the defendant had twins. When defendant left the manse he owed her twelve days' wages, and he never asked for the 5s. It was a lie that he gave defendant £30 that day.

He was in Newtownbutler subsequently, and was told by a member of his congregation that he was being blamed. He went to Mrs. Wilson's the following morning and told her about the rumour, and she replied, "Who else could do it?" He never paid any money in respect of any allegation in regard to the paternity of any child.

INCITED BY PARISHIONERS

Cross-examined by Mr. Chambers, Mr. Stoops said he thought he was being blackmailed. A second charge he made against the defendant at the Church courts was that she had been incited to bring the charge against him by some of his parishioners. He still believed that.

Mr. Chambers—Do you think this girl was induced by your parishioners to bring these false charges against you?—I am certain of it.

So that some of your parishioners took it upon themselves within a matter of weeks of the birth of these children to blame you with paternity?—Yes.

"Did they pay her to do that, sir?" asked counsel, to which the witness replied: "I cannot tell whether they did or not."

Plaintiff added that he was 60 years of age. He had not inquired from Bella Wilson as to who the father was. He denied having sent envoys to Mrs. Wilson and her daughter not to go to the presbytery, but to let it blow over. It absolutely capsized his intellect that she should bring such a charge against him. Her whole story, he went on, was false from start to finish, and she had been "well drilled" in telling her story.

Questioned by the Lord Chief Justice, the plaintiff agreed that his suggestion was that the defendant was merely a tool in the hands of somebody else.

The Lord Chief Justice intimated that he hoped to be in a position to give judgment next week.

NORTHERN WHITE BREAD

"TRADE DEVELOPED" IN EIRE

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

DUNDALK, Thursday.

The Probation of Offenders Act was applied by District Justice Goff today in a prosecution brought by the Minister for Supplies against Patrick Mathews, Castletown, for selling batch bread at an excess price.

Sergeant Rahilly said Mathews had a load of the bread, which he was selling at 7d. a loaf, the correct price being 6d.

Mathews said that he was being paid 7d. by friends, who asked him to take them bread when he had started going to the border for some for his own use. In cross-examination, he admitted that a trade in the white bread developed, and that he sold it in the streets.

Mr. Hamill, State Solicitor, submitted that an offence was committed against the people in Eire, who had to put up with restrictions, and also against the bakers and the Revenue.

A Customs officer said there was no prohibition against the importation of white flour, but there was against white bread.

The Justice said there was no loss to the Revenue.

Going Grey?
Restore Natural Colour this Easy Way

Don't let time mark you out by greying your hair. Put back the clock by giving your hair back its natural youthful colour. It's easy, inexpensive, safe, quick; Make up the following mixture. To a bare half pint of water add one ounce of Bay Rum. Then mix in contents of one small box Orlex Compound. Finally add a quarter ounce of glycerine. Any chemist can supply these ingredients or make up the mixture. Applied twice weekly, this non-greasy, non-sticky, non-rub mixture soon gives your hair the glow of youthful colour—and it doesn't colour the scalp. Get rid of grey hair. Start to-day—the Orlex way.
